Arteco launches new IP video door station

FAENZA, Italy - Arteco the industry leader in single-platform Video Event Management (VEMS) products for the security industry is pleased to announce the launch of Arteco VERITY- The new IP video door station.

Arteco VERITY is a genuine 100% full native IP system, entirely designed and made in Italy and represents the latest development in video door phone systems in terms of home security and building control. VERITY's IP architecture means that one single system can connect a number of homes to satisfy the needs of residential, company, office, service, building complex and even skyscraper applications. Moreover, it can connect an unlimited number of devices including entrance panels, video door units and reception switchboards. VERITY can be installed as a complete new system or as an extension to existing IP systems, even with pre-installed cabling.

"We have very high expectations for Arteco VERITY and believe it has enormous potential both for the Italian and international markets," commented Giampaolo Sabbatani, CEO of Arteco. "Its IP architecture, flexibility in integration, easy installation and cost savings are the key selling points which will prove to be competitive advantages in the long run."
